CNC Indexing & Technologies National Sales Manager Jessica Presutto Named a “2019 Emerging Leader” by Production Machining Magazine

[MASON, OH – August 2019] Jessica Presutto, national sales manager of CNC Indexing & Feeding Technologies, has been named to Production Machining Magazine’s list of “2019 Emerging Leaders.” Nominated by their peers, members of the list are manufacturing professionals under the age of 40 whom the magazine describes as “creative, driven, passionate, innovative and talented individuals [who] are not only opening doors for themselves in their careers, but simultaneously opening doors for younger generations in the industry.”

Production Machining reports that Presutto joined CNC Indexing & Feeding Technologies in January 2018 as an administrative assistant with responsibilities for accounting processes, parts shipments and answering telephones, as well as supporting other employees. When the sales manager left the company, Jessica was thrust into the role of handling all sales, parts and service calls. When customers sent her prints and schematics to quote accessory options, she spent time with applications engineers learning to understand the documents. After almost a year in the sales role, she embarked on an overseas trip to visit manufacturing OEMs to expand her product knowledge. Jessica worked to expand the company’s customer base to not only include end users, but distributors and OEMs. CNC Indexing & Feeding Technologies sales have increased 12 percent overall since Jessica has been in her sales position. The magazine concluded, “She took on the challenge to expand her skills and knowledge to secure a better future for herself and to assist customers.”

CNC Indexing & Feeding Technologies, headquartered in Mason, Ohio, is a premier value-added importer/distributor of quality machine tool accessories such as hydrodynamic magazine style bar feeders, short bar loaders, rotary tables, high pressure coolant systems, and oil skimmers.
